

Dear colleagues and friends,

I hope you are keeping well and staying safe.

Tsinghua University will be convening a meeting to be conducted virtually on Friday, 3 July 2020, 08:00-10:00am (Beijing time, GMT+8), to share Tsinghua's experience with university partners and education stakeholders, on the very urgent topic of online education during this unprecedented health emergency.

The meeting is themed Higher Education in Cloud – Promise and Practice. It consists of in-depth presentations on various aspects of online education in the COVID-19 period, including but not limited to: COVID-19's implications for the delivery of higher education; the phased release of Tsinghua's research and practical outcomes stemming from its transition to online education, and; identifying trends and solutions for inclusive distance learning going forward.

Tsinghua's experience – as the first university to shift all courses online in the wake of the pandemic – and subsequent research findings that will be evaluated from various angles, will be shared during the meeting in the spirit of mutual learning and support.

We warmly welcome specialists in digital learning or other related areas from your institution to attend the event by accessing the following links:
